Do-Good Games - Sample Speech

Welcome the group and introduce yourself for those who may not know you. Allow some time for your team to socialize at the start while everyone joins the meeting. Before introducing the activity, ensure everyone has what is needed to get started, strong Wi-Fi or if in person appropriate materials and clothing to participate.

Once ready, introduce the activity to your group.

Hello everyone and thank you for joining us. Get ready to team up with your colleagues to do some good in the world and give back while having a blast.

This philanthropic team building activity is all about building awareness around local and global challenges, raising funds for charity, and doing some good in the world.

Teams will complete challenges at your pace with the goal to gain as many points as possible. These challenges are designed to provoke thought, discussion, and action within teams. It is not a race, and you are encouraged to take your time to think about each challenge carefully before submitting your response.

If you have decided to donate to a local or global charity, you can share the goal with your team and some information about the charity at this time to motivate them throughout the activity. If teams' points will be tallied to determine the donation amount, let them know in advance so they can set their goals accordingly.

To participate, one person on your team will need to sign on to our Outback Team Building web application. Once you've signed on to the app, your team will complete challenges by submitting responses – all within the Outback web application.

Before we get started, I'd like to share a few tips for today's activity:

- One person only per team needs to sign into the app. This person is responsible for submitting the answer once your team agrees on it.
- Challenges can be completed in any order. You'll need to strategize to determine which challenges will earn your team the most points within the time limit.
- Points are based on the level of difficulty for each challenge. Completing the harder ones will earn you more points.
- You will also encounter photo challenges, please read the challenge descriptions carefully and complete them as directed in order to earn points.
- Once an answer is submitted, it cannot be changed.

Provide all teams in the group any resources needed prior to breaking them out. Activity code, challenge lists, resource materials etc. Once they have everything they need, break them out into teams.

Team Captains, let's get signed in to the activity and get started!
Entry Code: _____
Once signed in, you will be prompted to create a team name and take a team photo.
Alright everyone, let's get started!

Closing Speech

Today's activity showed you and you team were willing to learn more about the local and global causes in need of support. You worked together as a team to contribute your ideas and plan of action to support those causes and increase your individual awareness.

This is a good opportunity to encourage teams to share any challenges that stood out to them and what they discovered as a result.

If you are donating to a charity you can share how much money was raised, either through each teams' total points in the activity or a pre-determined amount. You can also talk in more detail about the charity recipient.

You do have the option to announce the teams who earned the most points. Although there is no right or wrong answer, teams might enjoy knowing who the top teams are.

OPTIONAL:
And now the moment you have all been waiting for…it's time to announce the top teams!

With a score of: _____   In third (3rd) place is: _____

With a score of: _____   In second (2nd) place is: _____

With a score of: _____   The winning team is: _____