

Thank you for participating in our investigation today. You all worked hard during this time to help us solve the case.

Now, let's found out exactly what happened:

Ivey Williams won the Best Actress of the year award for her first film. Working on the film, she didn't make a lot of close friends; being a small-town girl and living in a city where everyone sees everyone else as competition. It didn't help that the head writer was not happy to have her in the role – Gabe Tai originally wrote the role for his long-term girlfriend, actress Lucy Howard.

On set, everyone heard Ivey talking about how she was new to town and all of her life details. She spoke to Edith Grace (and almost everyone else on set) many times about how her ex-boyfriend from back home, Ronnie Kowalski was always trying to contact her and wouldn't give her any space. It sounded quite serious to Edith, so she advised her to get a restraining order to which Ivey disregarded in thinking he didn't have bad intentions.

Prior to the award ceremony, Lucy tried organizing an award show after-party at her hotel where she sent everyone her hotel details. Edith was having a soiree the same night, so no one had an interest in going to Ivey's. At Edith's party, Ivey only stayed until around 10:30pm as stated in Martin Minabi's statement. She headed back to her hotel to see Ronnie who flew in a couple of days ago and wanted to see her before flying back home. Reluctantly, Ivey agreed to meet him there.

Back at Edith's party, Lucy and Gabe arrived intoxicated. They started to fight because Lucy didn't want to be there; it only made her feel worse about herself being around everyone from the movie that she was expecting to play in and Gabe was mad that she wasn't supporting his own success of the movie. They moved into the study to draw less attention. Lucy's best friend Phoebe Lane checked on them when their fight was drawing attention. When Lucy saw all of Edith's awards, she got even more upset and started taking them out of the cases with Gabe, admiring them in jealousy and self-pity.

Around 1:00am Martin saw Lucy barely standing by the doorway, she was very intoxicated, so he helped her get home by ordering a car.

Ivey had fired her personal assistant, Monique Rish for stealing money from her and to get some revenge over Ivey, Monique tipped off the paparazzi with Ivey's hotel address. The paparazzi took a photo of a man leaving Ivey's hotel room at 2:00am. This couldn't have been Ronnie because he boarded his flight at 12:30am and according to the autopsy report, the time of death was at 1:30am, an hour later.

Gabe lied to Detective Wallace when he said he and Lucy went back home together in a cab. Gabe took his own cab after Lucy and actually made his way to Ivey's hotel to confront her about his anger towards her. He blames Ivey for making Lucy spiral and hated working with her on the movie. He stole one of the awards from Edith's study and in an intoxicated raged, hit her over the head with it.

Gabe Tai is the murderer.
